Background Information

- The wall was built in 1850;
- The site is of local historical significance as evidence of mid 19th century development on the Princes Highway, Tempe.

Statement of Significance

- It is considered likely that the sandstone wall is a remnant of a mid 19th century retail building which fronted the Princes Highway, and that the majority of the building was demolished as a result of 20th century road widening;
- The site is a potential archaeological site including sandstone wall facing Berne Street;
- The sandstone wall is of local aesthetic significance as an example of mid 19th century stonemasonry;
- The site is of local research significance for its ability to reveal further information with regard to mid 19th century development along the Princes Highway; and
- The sandstone wall and any associated fabric are remnants only of a 19th century building on the site.

Management Recommendations

- An Archaeological Assessment report is required by Council to accompany any Development Application for non-minor work to the sandstone wall on the site and any associated early fabric, and for any excavation on the site; and
- The retention of the sandstone wall as part of any future development, along with investigation of the archaeological potential of the site, is the preferred future outcome for the site.
